

ALL IN or ALL GONE

PROTECT YOUR FARM.
PROTECT YOUR LIVELIHOOD.

#1

Highly pathogenic avian influenza (HPAI) is real. And while there are currently no known cases in Georgia, it is critical that everyone working on poultry farms should follow strict biosecurity measures to prevent HPAI from making its way onto Georgia farms. The economic impact across the state could be devastating.

ALL IN means ALL OF US practicing biosecurity measures ALL THE TIME.

Catching avian influenza on your farm means your chickens are ALL GONE. The flock will be depopulated, and your farm will be quarantined.

Help us help you by educating ALL of your farm workers and ensuring they follow simple, preventative biosecurity procedures ALL the time, every time. We are all in this together. Protect your farm. Protect your livelihood.

Be on the lookout for biosecurity tips and other information about avian influenza in the coming weeks and months.

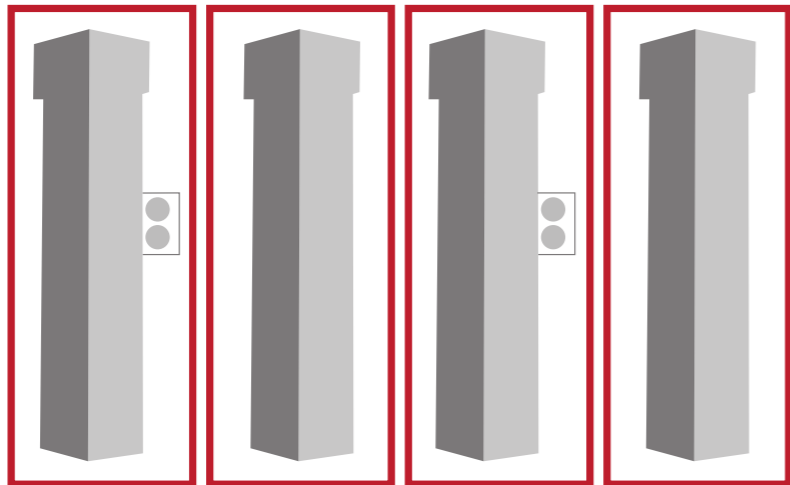

A message from the Georgia Poultry Federation.

www.allinallgone.com

ALL IN OR ALL GONE

PROTECT YOUR FARM.
PROTECT YOUR LIVELIHOOD.

Draw your line of defense around each individual house.

#2

HOW SAFE IS YOUR HOUSEKEEPING?

Bio-security practices on poultry farms have evolved over time. While discouraging visitors to farms is still very important, it is now also critical to think of it in terms of drawing an impenetrable line of defense around each individual poultry house.

This is a new day. The bio-security practices of the past are not sufficient to protect your farm from the disease threats of the future. One way to think about it is to assume that the virus is on your farm already, and treat any entry into a chicken house by you or one of your workers as potentially dangerous.

Insist on ALL IN, ALL THE TIME for every single farm worker, visitor or family member.

Each person must follow the strictest bio-security procedures when they enter the poultry house – for example, wearing protective foot coverings or using shoes dedicated for inside the poultry house only, making sure that any equipment used in the house is completely disinfected before it comes into the house, and preventing wild birds from getting into your poultry house. These are just a few of the “must do” practices... we will be sharing details and tips about these individual practices in the weeks to come.

It's ALL IN. OR ALL GONE. Keep the bad stuff outside your chicken houses!

Your farm IS your livelihood. Protect it.

A message from the Georgia Poultry Federation.

www.allinallgone.com

ALL IN Or ALL GONE

PROTECT YOUR FARM.
PROTECT YOUR LIVELIHOOD.

Draw your line of defense around each individual house.

#2

HOW SAFE IS YOUR HOUSEKEEPING?

Bio-security practices on poultry farms have evolved over time. While discouraging visitors to farms is still very important, it is now also critical to think of it in terms of drawing an impenetrable line of defense around each individual poultry house.

This is a new day. The bio-security practices of the past are not sufficient to protect your farm from the disease threats of the future. One way to think about it is to assume that the virus is on your farm already, and treat any entry into a chicken house by you or one of your workers as potentially dangerous.

Insist on ALL IN, ALL THE TIME for every single farm worker, visitor or family member.

Each person must follow the strictest bio-security procedures when they enter the poultry house – for example, wearing protective foot coverings or using shoes dedicated for inside the poultry house only, making sure that any equipment used in the house is completely disinfected before it comes into the house, and preventing wild birds from getting into your poultry house. These are just a few of the “must do” practices... we will be sharing details and tips about these individual practices in the weeks to come.

It's ALL IN. OR ALL GONE. Keep the bad stuff outside your chicken houses!

Your farm IS your livelihood. Protect it.

A message from the Georgia Poultry Federation.

www.allinallgone.com